Initial: This morning, soldiers and numerous settlers attacked residents of the village of Khalat al-Daba' in the Yatta Pass, in the area defined by apartheid as "Firing Area 918," and arrested three residents and two solidarity activists.

The attack began after two settlers, apparently from the Havat Ma'on outpost, invaded private land belonging to residents of Khalat al-Daba with a herd of sheep.

Three residents who came out to ask them to leave the area were severely attacked by them with clubs, and then attacked again by soldiers who came to support the invaders. After being beaten, the Palestinians arrested them and the two solidarity activists and took them to the military base in Susiya.

The village of Khalat al-Daba is under the control of the Zionist ethnic cleansing apparatus, and the attack comes as part of the increased efforts to expel the village's residents, who have been attacked by Zionist militias several times this year, and just in the last month were forced to watch the destruction of their homes, property, and fruit trees with bulldozers and state-owned demolition equipment.

In in Hualien County a private 6ha butterfly reserve is being used to also grow indigo plants, which were a major cash crop until about a century ago. Underneath the trees indigo plants provide food and shelter for the butterflies: excess indigo leaves are harvested and sold.

1/4 The Tragedy That Didn't Happen: Ilai Federman is apparently jealous of "No Other Country" winning the Oscar, so he wrote and directed a play in which he plays the lead role. Only the acting... isn't really convincing. The following video was filmed with the Solidarity activists' car camera. As can be clearly seen in the video, there was no trampling or shoving in Zanota last Saturday.

1/6 Yesterday, activists arrived to document the establishment of an outpost on the lands of the village of Zanuta, whose residents were expelled from it twice by settlers from Havat Meitarim. Settlers quickly descended from the outpost, blocked the activists' vehicles, and then the show began: settler Ilai Federman jumped and lay down on the floor next to the vehicle and began screaming in an incredibly ridiculous manner, falsely claiming that he had been run over.

On January 3, Khaled Najjar, 72, was attacked and beaten in the head with clubs at 3 a.m. He was seriously injured and rushed to the hospital. Last week, residents of the same village were attacked again while working their land, and another person was injured in the head and required surgery."

1/4 Yesterday, boys from the village of Wadi Tiran were grazing their sheep near the town of Al Dhahriya, when masked settlers arrived in a tractor and a civilian car. The settlers, one of whom was wearing a uniform, called one of the Palestinians, searched him, confiscated his cell phone, blindfolded him, tied his hands, and loaded him into the vehicle.

1/4 Residents of the village of Umm al-Khair in the Yatta Massafar district woke up this morning to the sound of heavy tools that settlers had brought to the outskirts of their homes. Near the village homes, the settlers began measuring and drilling into the land, claiming that it belonged to them. The settlers worked for hours and happily watched as the villagers were forced to watch their land being stolen without being able to do anything.

1/4 Our friend and beloved Jibrin Abu Aram from the village of Gawawis was arrested today by the Hebron police and taken to one of the Israeli concentration camps ("detention center"). This is because he tried to protect his life and the lives of his family from a pogrom by dozens of settlers who attacked his home and village, injuring many residents, under the protection of the army and police, last Wednesday.
